Building a relationship with the world you are in and the world you want to create is the objective of this workshop.

During 5 days we discover and train our creative capacities through sensitive relationship with objects, each other, the context, living dynamics and the whole.

We work with the four elements and connect them to ease, form, beauty and the entirety as creative activities. We use our bodies as instruments to serve the creative process.

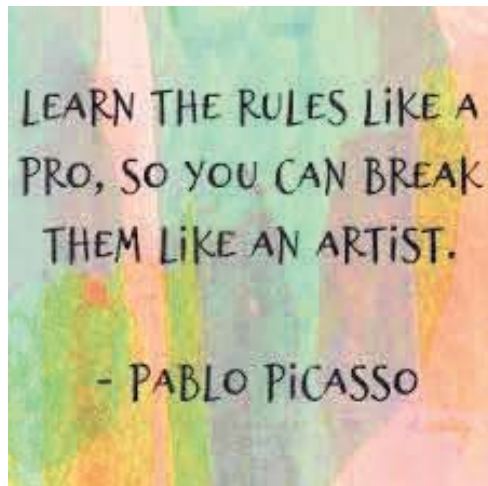

A learning experience, in which we meet each facilitator every day and work as an ensemble. We practice doorways to perception, explore four different feedback loops and what it takes to be present.

Marjolein Baars, Lenard Petit and Peter Paul Gerbrands share a love for transformation and the openness to learn from the creative processes. The Michael Chekhov acting technique is the common ground between us and the approach to our work

Creativity is the discipline of working with wholeness, interrelationships and patterns and transforming those sensations and observations into physical acts.
